 - a. A certification of the employee's own serious health condition, which provides information on the employee's medical situation, work restrictions, etc.;
 - b. A certification of a family member's serious health condition, which provides medical facts about the family member and information on how often and for how long the family member will require care;
 - c. A certification of the employee's need for military caregiver leave, which provides information on the family member's medical situation, military duty, etc.; and
 - d. A certification of the employee's need for qualifying exigency leave, which gives information about the facts underlying the employee's request.
2. An employee requesting FMLA must complete the Family and Medical Leave Certification Form within 15 days from the date that leave is requested.
3. Failure to provide the requested medical certification in a timely manner, or if incomplete or insufficient medical certification is received, the employee has seven days to correct deficiencies. Failure to do so may result in denial of leave until the certification is provided.
4. The Town may require, at its own expense, a second independent medical opinion.
5. If the second opinion differs from the first, the Town may, at its own expense, require a third opinion from a health care provider designated or approved jointly by the employee and the Town. The opinion of the third health care provider will be considered final and binding upon the employer and the employee.

- c. The key employee may be denied reinstatement when:
 - 1) The Town demonstrates that denying reinstatement is necessary to prevent substantial and grievous economic injury to its operations;
 - 2) The Town notifies the employee that the Town intends to deny reinstatement at the conclusion of the FMLA leave, when it determines that substantial and grievous economic injury would occur; and
